

Are you feeling lucky?

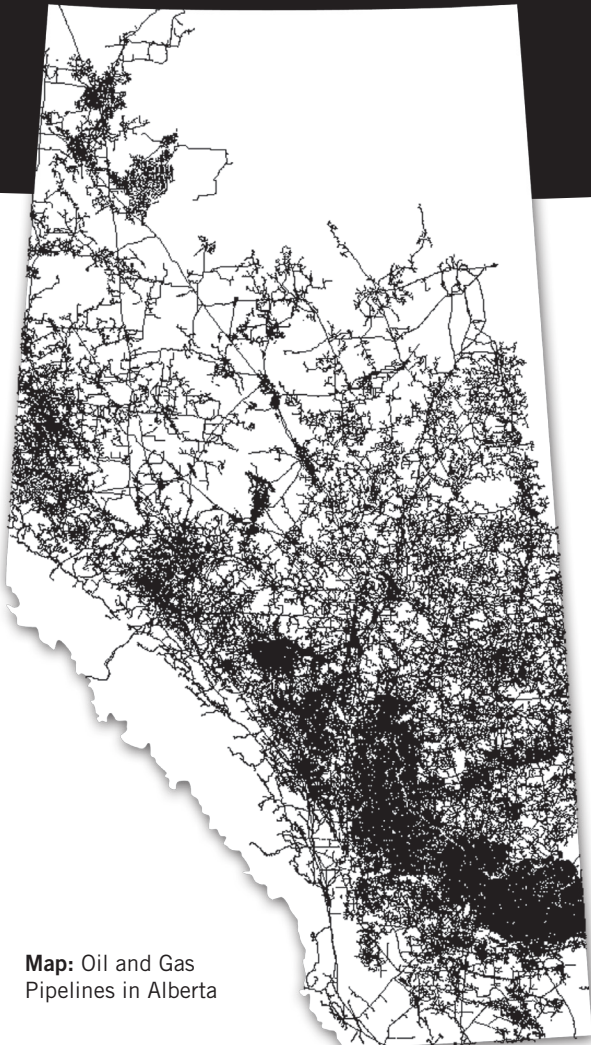

According to Plains Midstream Pipeline Company, we got lucky when 3000 barrels of oil spilled from one of its pipelines and went into the Red Deer River, killing fish, soiling the shoreline, and threatening the drinking water of tens of thousands of Albertans. This is the same company responsible for one of the largest pipeline spills in Alberta's history in 2011.

An average of 300 oil pipeline spills happen every year, and the risks of an aging pipeline infrastructure remain uncertain. With over 320,000 km of oil and gas related pipelines in this province, how lucky do you feel?

Premier Redford, we shouldn't have to rely on luck. You must take action to protect our water and our families from oil spills, starting with an independent review of pipeline safety in Alberta.

Alberta Surface Rights Group
Alberta Union of Provincial Employees
Alberta Wilderness Association
Athabasca Chipewyan First Nation
Citizens for Responsible Development
Council of Canadians
Friends of Lily Lake
Greenpeace Canada

Keepers of the Athabasca
National Farmers Union
Sierra Club Prairie Chapter
Three Creeks Resident's group.
Warburg Pembina Surface Rights Group
Water Matters
West Athabasca Watershed Bio Regional Society

Map: Oil and Gas
Pipelines in Alberta