

Alberta Wilderness Association

As a provincial organization, we work throughout Alberta to create awareness and action for wilderness, wildlife and wild waters – but where exactly is “Wild Alberta”? Since our inception, we have endeavoured to answer that question, beginning with kitchen-table conversations and simple bubbles drawn on paper maps. With advancements in GIS and a lot of tremendous help from experts and volunteers, we have been able to refine our map into an online public resource that helps define where “Wild Alberta” is. We’re excited to introduce our Wild Alberta Interactive Map!

The map is our newest resource to help researchers, explorers, colleagues, students, authors, politicians and engaged Albertans to learn about Alberta's six distinct Natural Regions, which landscapes are currently protected, and priority areas AWA calls Areas of Concern.

Our Areas of Concern are the landscapes that we've identified as having important wilderness values: high biodiversity, specific and unique landscape features and vital wildlife habitat. These are the landscapes we hope will be as pristine and breathtaking 100 years from now as they are today.

We really hope you will take a moment to check out the map, learn a little about our Wild Alberta and if you can, write and tell us where your wild space is and what it means to you.

Happy navigating!

-Your Alberta Wilderness Association Team
